Exploring AI Integration in Project Management

Call for Research Volunteers

In a one-time, 45-60 minute interview, participants will be asked to discuss their experiences using AI within project management contexts.

This qualitative research study examines how project management professionals are integrating artificial intelligence (AI) into project monitoring and control workflows. As AI-driven tools, as predictive analytics, automated dashboards, and risk forecasting, become increasingly prevalent in project environments, the study seeks to understand how these technologies are applied in practice, the challenges professionals encounter during implementation, and the strategies that support effective adoption.
